SMITH COLLEGE OUTSIDE AID POLICY: Non-Smith awards may be used to reduce the self-help portion or your aid, or family contribution. However, in no case will the family contribution be reduced below the federally calculated contribution. When outside aid awards have replaced the suggested loan and job, and the family contribution has been reduced to the federally calculated level, Smith Grant will be reduced dollar for dollar. This policy applies each year you receive awards. Entitlement awards from state or federal sources as well as tuition subsidies based on parents' employment are not covered by the policy and reduce Smith Grant dollar for dollar. Benefits from rehabilitation agencies are treated in a slightly different manner. Rehabilitation assistance for books goes directly to the student and does not affect your aid package. One-half of other rehabilitation benefits will be used to replace the suggested loan and one-half will replace the Smith Grant. Need-based loans from state or outside agencies can be used to replace either the suggested federal loan or job, dollar for dollar. Outside awards will appear as credits to your account when checks are received from donors.
