Studying, Students, and Space

Findings from observations and interviews by Anthropology majors and students of Introduction to Cultural Anthropology

Fall 2015
“Best things about Hillyer: quiet, organized, accessible, lots of space...is a ‘hidden gem.’”

“Neilson is a little sad and gloomy.”
“Individual study, except for computer science because the room can get pretty loud and participant needs full attention.”

“More quiet study.”
“A lot of the times public computers are not occupied, but at the same time, some Smith students are unable to find a public computer to work...would like more public computers dedicated to the use of Smith students.”