

Charles Figley, Ph.D. – Director, Florida State University Traumatology Institute
Dr. Figley directs the award-winning Florida State University FSU Traumatology Institute and Psychosocial Stress Research and Development Program. The Institute was recognized in 2000 as the best program of its kind by the University Continuing Education Association. He is a Fulbright Fellow and Professor at the College of Social Work at FSU. He is also a psychologist and family therapist. He is formerly Professor of Family Therapy and Psychology at Purdue University (1974-1989). Professor Figley received both graduate degrees from the Pennsylvania State University and his undergraduate degree from the University of Hawaii, all in the interdisciplinary field of human development. He has been editor of a number of journals (e.g., the Founding editor of the Journal of Traumatic Stress) and book series (e.g., the Innovations in Psychology Book Series with Taylor & Francis). His current editorships include Editor (founder), Traumatology, The International Journal, 1995-present and Editor (founder), Routledge (formerly Brunner/Mazel) Psychosocial Stress Book Series, 1983-present.