

Nancy Meyer, M.S.W., L.I.C.S.W. – Walter Reed Army Medical Center
Nancy Meyer, MSW, is a clinical social worker in the Department of Psychiatry at Walter Reed Army Medical Center where she provides psychotherapy for service members (including OIF and OEF), their families, and retirees and their families. Prior to holding this position she administered clinical assessments for the Deployment Health Clinical Center as part of a VA Cooperative study of PTSD in women in the military. She has also worked as a clinical social worker at an analytically based psychiatric hospital specializing in "treatment resistant" patients, as a psychotherapist in a residential treatment center for dually-diagnosed adolescents and as a private practice therapist specializing in complex trauma. She is a graduate of the Smith College School for Social Work.