B. Breadth Requirement

1 course in Classical Texts

1 course in History, Politics, and Thought

1 course in Literature and the Arts

C. Electives

Five courses, selected from the approved list of Jewish Studies courses in the catalog.

D. Seminar or Advanced Special Studies

E. Language exemption

If you passed out of the JUD 100y language requirement above, you must add two additional courses here. Normally, at least one of these courses will be a more advanced level of Hebrew language or study of another Jewish language (classical Hebrew, Yiddish, etc).

Honors Students enroll in JUD 430d (full-year course) in their senior year. Normally, the two courses taken in fulfillment of the Honors will replace two of a student’s electives.
Additional Guidelines

For a full description of the major please consult the official Smith College catalogue

1. The major in Jewish Studies consists of 12 semester courses.

2. Jewish Studies highly values the study of language. Although JUD 100y is the minimum requirement for the major, the Program strongly encourages students to continue study of Hebrew or of another Jewish language.

3. With the approval of her adviser, a student may count toward the major up to two Smith College courses outside the approved list of Jewish Studies courses, when such courses offer a comparative or additional methodological perspective to the student’s chosen concentration. In such cases, a student normally writes at least one of her assignments for the course on a Jewish Studies topic.

4. No course counting toward the major may be taken for an S/U grade.

5. Normally, at least seven of the courses toward the major shall be taken at Smith College.

6. No more than two courses at the 100-level, other than JUD 100y and JUD 125, may count toward the major.

7. In order to support the interdisciplinary nature of a major in Jewish Studies, normally no more than seven of a student’s courses shall be from the same academic department.
